The City Base-Ball League. There was a meeting of the City Base-ball League delegates at 98 East Market street last night, all of the clubs being represented. It was decided by a unanimous vote that no club shall be allowed to engage more than twelve men, and that each player be required to sign a regular contract, which specifies that no salary is to be paid to the signer. There will be six clubs in the league, known as the Grand Avenues, Kellehers, Capital Cities, Nationals, Unions and Easterns, and they will play at Brighton Beach, Woodruff Place and Garfield Park. An executive committee, composed of one member from each club, was appointed, and hereafter all business of the league will be in the hands of this committee. Gus Smith, Victor Helmer and D. M. Talentyre were appointed to solicit prizes. The schedule question was left over for future action, and it is not yet known when the season will open. It was decided that the first installment of the entrance fee shall be paid stallment of the entrance fee shall be paid in at the first meeting in March, and the second early in April. A DELEGATION FROM KANSAS.

Ex-Governor Anthony Speaks of His State and for Its Representation in the Cabinet.

A distinguished delegation arrived from Kansas, yesterday, and called upon Gen. Harrison in the afternoon. It consisted of ex-Governor Anthony, Lieutenant-governor E. J. Phelps, Henry Booth, Speaker of the House of Representatives; James Hamilton, Treasurer of State; Col. James Hollowell and Col. Richard Walker. The Governor, a smooth-taced, elderly gentleman, a suave and ready talker, with a pleasantlymodulated voice, was the spokesman of the party. "We were well pleased with our reception by General Harrison," said the Governor to a Journal reporter, after his return from the house of the Presidentelect. "I will tell you why we are here. We are not here in the interest of any individual in or out of the delegation. Our Legislature introduced and passed concurrent resolutions asking the Governor to communicate to General Harrison the wish and right of the State to be recognized in his Cabinet, and named United States Senator Plumb as the choice of Kansas. Those resolutions were passed without a dissenting vote, and these gentlemen and myself have been sent as a committee to present them. This is purely State in character, and without the wish or knowledge of Senator Plumb, who has just been elected for the third time to the United States Senate by the unanimous vote of the Legislature-not a vote against him. We do not think he would prefer a Cabinet position, but it is the wish of the State. It was felt that such a representation on the part of the State would have its influence, and find a recognition, not incident to personal appeals, for the reason that Kansas cast the largest Repub-have its influence, and find a recognition, not incident to personal appeals. for the reason that Kansas cast the largest Republican majority of any State in the Union—82,000 majority in a vote of 330,000. And yet in our party in Kansas there is neither jea-lousy, contention nor factional discord. We have a Legislature with only three opposition members in 125 in the House, and a single Democrat in the Senate, and yet we were unanimous in the election of a Senator as we were unanimous in the adoption of this resolution.

"The State of Kansas was the battle-ground where the conflict was fought that made the Republican party possible, the triumph of principles it rallied around, and success in this country. The contest was really fought six years in Kansas by volunteers and martyrs before the government of the United States realized that it was a national one. The very name of Kansas is a golden thread, running through the history of that great struggle, which culminated in the freedom of the slave and the final triumph of liberty for the entire country. Kansas is Republican always. It has never had a Democratic administration; never had but one State officer who was a Democrat, and he has left about the same impression upon the political history of the State that a fly might leave upon the track of a comet. Kansas is the fruit of Republicanism. The result is that it has accomplished in twenty-five years more in progress, in development of various industries, in wealth, in public improvement than, I believe, has ever known in the human race. From nothing we have come to be the third State in the Union in railroad mileage, and have between $6,000 and 9,000 miles of raliway. The State has built in the last eighteen years eleven million dollars' worth of school-houses; its current expenses for common schools and school appliances, in the number of teachers and the pay of instructors, stands better than Massachusetts, the mother of the common-school system. For these reasons we felt it would be a proper and just thin

PRESIDENT GREEN SATISFIED.

But the Connecticut Mutual Policy-Holders Will Insist on an Investigation.

President Green, of the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company with Vicepresident Abbott, left the city yesterday afternoon for the East. A Journal reporter meeting the former in the lobby of the Bates, as he was about to go to the Union Station, asked him if he was satisfied with the result of his visit. "Yes," he replied, "it has been highly satisfactory to us. Of course, I did not come to make any legal dissertations, but I believe I have succeeded fully in showing policy-holders here both the position and condition of our company." "Haveyou heard expressions from policyholders since the meeting?" "I have, and a great many, too; some even coming to me to tell me of their changed feelings toward our company. It was natural that policy-holders should desire to understand the true condition of things here and at Hartford. I am sure there is a very different feeling now prevalent regarding this matter."

"Do you think that steps for an investigation will be taken?"

"I really am unable to say. It is none of my business. If the policy-holders care to investigate everything possible will be done to assist them. The only thing asked is that if they make this examination it should be made at the same time as that of the Insurance Commissioners of Connecticut. This is in order to avoid double labor all around."

As Mr. Green was about to depart a num-ber of gentlemen of this city gathered about him and invited him to make fre-

"As a policy-holder, I am inclined to think some steps will certainly be taken at the meeting on Tuesday next towards an examination of the affairs of the company in Hartford, by a committee appointed by the Auditor of this State, just as originally proposed. That committee, according to our statutes, will be composed of persons entirely disinterested, either as policy-holders, officers or stockholders. They will be men of undoubted veracity, and the world will accept their verdict, whatever it be."

"You then consider the general impression of Colonel Greene's talk to be favorable?" Mrs. Ewing Gives Her Formulas for Making Them Most Appetizing and Nutritious.

Yet, as I There was a large addition to Mrs. Ewing's cooking class yesterday morning. The subject of "Soups," which was set for the lesson, was preceded by a few remarks on the baking of bread and cakes, called forth by the interrogation class, which suddenly began to ask questions. After she had answered the questions, Mrs. Ewing, turning to the stove, took up a stewpan and said, "One might know that was made by a man who had no practical knowlmissioner of Connecticut. I believe the result will be highly important. It will spur the Commissioner to a more thorough edge of its use, for the lip is on the wrong side. Isn't it a pity women do not invent more?" For vegetable soup she told the pupils to take one-half dozen cloves and one and one-half dozen clery root, and fry them slightly, cut them up and put them in a stew-pan with a little of the stock and let simmer and then turn them into the plain soup.

All the time Mrs. Ewing was talking she was doing, and she then put some or the clear soup, plain soup and vegetable soup on plates and passed it, saying: "Begin at the gentleman reporter. Whenever there is one present, always begin with him." Each lady was provided with napkin and spoon, and as the plates were passed each helped herself to a spoonful; some emptied the spoon at once while others sipped, with expressions of delight.

The new members elected were E. D. Woodard, Rushville; J. W. Fintz, New Castle; B. T. Pace, Salem, and R. W. Crockett, Delphi.

A protest was presented from E. Bronson against the premium awarded on English mastiff female, and he asked for a rejudging.

The matter was referred to the executive purchaser being allowed to buy ten tickets for Monday evening, when Mary appears in "The Winter's Tale," and ten for Tuesday evening when she plays "Pygmalion and Galatea" and "Comedy and Tragedy." Before daylight yesterday morning the first man in line made his appearance. He was evidently an old campaigner for he brought a chair and blanket with him, and camped down in the lobby of the operahouse just under the ticket-office window, where the first beams of the ticket-seller's countenance would strike him when the ticket-window was opened. Six other enterprising citizens, similarly accountered, followed him closely, and ranged their chairs behind him along the wall and in front of the closed doors of the theater. The chair idea took hold readily, and thenceforward everybody who fell in line got a seat of some kind, wherever it was possible, and held it down. The result was a collection of stools, split-bottoms, lazy plication for the appointment of a special superintendent over the poultry department. It was also recommended that a larger expenditure of money be made in premiums on fowls. It was decided to hold the next exhibition in January next, commencing on Tuesday, 14th, and continu-ing until Saturday night following. a collection of stools, split-bottoms, lazy backs and rockers, that looked like the last load on moving day, and the holders of them were as varied in their appearance as Money is not so plentiful in the State the seats they occupied, ranging from trim young speculators, who had their own money to invest in tickets, down to street arabs, who did not have a cent, and were Treasury that the General Assembly can afford to spend much more time in partisan legislation. There are enough claims out arabs, who did not have a cent, and were simply holding places for other people.

All day yesterday this motley crowd hung on to their chairs, and glared at newcomers as though they suspected some effort might be made to jump now to take every dollar of the general fund, and unless the legislators make some arrangements soon by which a loan at a low rate of interest can be effected, they will have to ask credit for board during the remainder of the session. No settlement with the counties occurs until May, and the Treasurer of State does not feel inclined to ask for advance payments in order to cash warrants for legislators, doorkeepers, secretaries, clerks and pages.

Comers as though they suspected some effort might be made to jump their claims. Toward evening their vigilance relaxed a little, and last night, when the reporter visited the scene, considerable sociability was being included in. A good many of the watchers had curled up on their chairs and were trying to sleep, but the majority were clustered about the doorways or out on the revenuent, trying to fill in the time matchpavement, trying to fill in the time matchpavement, trying to fill in the time matching pennies or swapping knives. Some of them had grown sick of their venture, and several offered to sell out places, near the tail end of the line, for twenty-five cents. Others approached the passers-by with proffers of assistance in securing reserved seats, and mentioned their advanced position in the line as offering superior inducements to would-be purchasers. The only people present who seemed to have any money of their own or other people's to invest were two or three small syndicates of half a dozen persons each, who took care of each others seats and stood regular watches to relieve J.
